Dear Business Leader,

We are proud to offer you an exclusive opportunity to sponsor our 35th Annual NKF Rich Salick Pro Am Surf Festival that will be held at the Westgate Cocoa Beach Pier, October 10th-12th, 2020.

You will be joining some of the biggest names in surfing including Ron Jon Surf Shop, Angel Anarchy Eyewear, Ocean Potion along with key businesses such as Regions Bank, Capri Sun, Chobani, Verizon, Jeep and Kashi to name a few.

Our success in this event allows us to raise much needed funds to support the kidney patients in our community and implement programs like our Early Detection Kidney Screenings, which we offer free to the community. In addition, the NKF's Patient Aid Program delivers vital financial aid for food, medicine and transportation to and from dialysis for kidney disease patients in need. We are advocates in the State and Federal legislatures for all kidney and ALL transplant issues and raising awareness that organ donation is a priority with over 118,000 people on the transplant waiting list and 96,000 that are waiting for kidneys alone. With 73 million Americans at risk for kidney disease our efforts are urgently needed to raise awareness for this "Silent Killer".

Our fundraising goal for this year is to raise a record $150,000, of which we hope you will be contributing a part.

So join us as we celebrate 35 years of surfing for a cause. For promotional purposes, I hope to hear from you as soon as possible so that we can include your logos in our pre-event marketing. If you need additional information please do not hesitate to call.

Kind Regard,

Phil Salick, Co-Founder

Marketing Advantages of the NKF of Florida Surf Festival

The National Kidney Foundation of Florida Surf Festival is an entertainment extravaganza that combines world class surfing competition and beach activities with food, drink, and music. All proceeds from the event go to the National Kidney Foundation of Florida, a 501(c)(3) public charity to support programs in patient services, research, public and professional education, and organ donation. The NKF of Florida is proud to say that 82 cents of every dollar raised by the foundation goes directly to patient programs and services.

The format of the event is an outdoor, large scale festival featuring sanctioned pro and amateur surfing competition, continuous live music, radio personalities, live broadcasts, a silent auction, giveaways, and much more. The event target market is surfing fans of all ages, families with children ages 5-13, and young adults 25 and up, with 75% of attendees coming from Brevard County.

Corporations and the overall public have a major stake in Florida's health and the prevention of kidney disease. The 34th Annual NKF of Florida Surf Festival is a unique way to reach a major market segment and assist in educating the public about causes and prevention of kidney disease.

Specifically, the Surf Festival is designed to:

1. Bring sponsor products and services to the attention of the public;
2. Assist companies in marketing their products and services directly to the public, building revenues and repeat purchases, strengthening market share and building consumer familiarity;
3. Expand media coverage and provide more media options for event sponsors through an active and ongoing radio and print media promotional effort;
4. Provide a new marketing outlet and an event to showcase products and services of sponsors;
5. Place the name of the event sponsors and their products before the approximately 50,000 attendees;
6. Assist in identifying sponsors as companies which are active participants in health issues among their employees and in their communities.

The Surf Festival is a unique platform for astute, sophisticated marketers who have the spirit and insight of marketing innovation. Sponsorships are available only on a first come first served basis. Most sponsorship levels have exclusivity rights with respect to certain product categories and the right of first refusal. Special sponsorships may be created upon request of individual companies.

Many companies make products and provide services which can be marketed to the Surf Festival target audience. Specific products which have participated in the past include sun care products, sunglasses, soft drinks, tropical drink mixes, bottled water, swimsuits, sport drinks, surfboards and related equipment, water sports equipment, insurance companies, financial institutions, restaurants, health and exercise products, and others. Past sponsors have included Capri Sun, Pantene, Verizon, Jeep, Kashi, Angel/Anarchy, Honest Tea, to name a few.

20TH ANNIVERSARY NKF PRO-AM SURFING FESTIVAL

Ophelia pumps up waves for 20th NKF Surf Festival

By Sean O'Hare

The largest charitable surf contest in the world was rewarded with good overcast surf for most of the event compliments of Tropical Storm Ophelia's sudden development near the Bahamas. Like many previous Labor Day weekends in Florida, winds and rain kept the spectators under umbrellas and tents for a good portion of the event but the high level of surfing also kept them on the edge of their (at times) rain-soaked beach towels. This was the first time a storm was named Ophelia but it wasn't the first time over 400 surfers had gotten together to raise money for the National Kidney Foundation. For the past 20 years, friends and family have come together from all over the country to surf and have some fun under the sun in good old Cocoa Beach. Founders of the event, Richard and Paul Salick, have done a great job keeping the focus on surfing and enabled many of inspiring young pros a chance to showcase their skills and make some travel cash and other hardened semi-retired veterans a chance to pay some bills. This year was no different. Old versus new, saving round bones versus pop shovels. Competitive surfing has changed a bunch over the past 20 years but one thing has stayed the same. Anything can happen in a heat. That's right folks, anything. That said, I bet no one expected at the beginning of the event that Blake Jones would win both the Men's pro and Junior Pro in consecutive heats at good size over head chunky surf. I know I didn't. Having judged the entire event and seeing D Jones struggle, shade, the backs of his pants. "I'm one of the top off day surfers."

Gullbeau, Hewitson advance in men's pro. Eddie Gullbeau of Melbourne Beach and Bryan Hewitson of Indiantown won their second-round heats Sunday to advance to the quarterfinals. Gullbeau started slowly in his second heat but finished strong, scoring a 7.9 on his eighth and final wave to take the top spot.

Adam Wickwire of Satellite Beach, Kyle Carson of Melbourne Beach, Danner Melhado of Indiantown and Cocoa Beach's Sean Slater and David Volney also advanced.

DOWLING RIDA TODAY

Weeks before the 1 Mike Erdman Cocoa Beach Surfing Festival National Kidney Foundation (NKF) Pro-Am Surfing Festival, Richard Salick was brimming with optimism.

"You know, last year wasn't our best one," he said. "We kind of got curtailed by a hurricane. But this year, we're not going to have a hurricane and everything is going to be great."

Salick, whose long battles with kidney disease spurred the foundation of the annual surfing-with-a-cause event, expects thousands of people to attend the annual Labor Day weekend festival, which is set for Friday through Monday, Sept. 2-5, at the beach near Minute-men Causeway.

The Origin of the NKF of Florida Surf Festival

The Surf Festival began years ago as a small event to benefit chronically ill dialysis patients. It was the heartfelt commitment of former professional surfer, Rich Salick and his twin brother Phil, who put his life on the line in 1974 by donating a kidney to save Rich's life.

Rich was a member of the original Dewey Weber Surf Team in the late 1960's, the US Surfing Team in 1972, and qualified as a member of the World Surfing Team in 1973. Shortly after signing professional contracts to endorse and promote surfboards with a prominent California based company, he had a violent decline in his health. Faced with dialysis treatments to save his life, his ability to do the things he loved vanished. Rich had spent much of his life surfing around the globe, but he couldn't walk one block from his home to the shores of Cocoa Beach.

Phil gave Rich his new lease on life on September 17, 1974 at the University of Florida's Shands Teaching Hospital. After a rugged first year adjusting to medications, his health began to improve. Shortly after his recovery, Rich started thinking about surfing again, something his doctors told him he would never do. Because the transplanted kidney was placed in the abdominal cavity on the right side, his doctors told him it would be difficult to protect it from injury. Rich visited Cypress Gardens and asked about "ensolite," the material used to make water ski jackets.

From this inspiration, he developed a padding system to protect his transplanted kidney and went on to surf against the advice of his doctors. However, there was one doctor who encouraged him, Dr. Robert Cade. Dr. Cade, more famous as the inventor of Gatorade, was one of the physicians that gave Rich the go ahead to surf again. Rich's return to surfing was slow and painful as many of the movements he had become so accustomed to making were now very strenuous. He fought his way back to eventually surf larger waves and even decided to re-enter competition. In his first effort at competing he garnered second place overall and won his next surfing event. That first place trophy still sits in the dialysis unit at the University of Florida where Richard spent 8 hours a day, 3 days a week on life saving dialysis machine. He has never forgotten his time there, and has dedicated much of his life to support transplant and dialysis patients.

Richard even went on to surf professionally again and is recognized by Contemporary Dialysis Magazine as the first athlete ever to return to his sport at the professional level after a kidney transplant. Richard was also the recipient of the prestigious "Nancy Katin Award" given to one surfer in the world each year, voted upon by the presidents of the Worldwide Surfing Associations and Federations.

Rich and Phil were so grateful about their recovery; they wanted to do something for other kidney patients. They started a series of surfing contests called the Florida Team Invitational. The proceeds went directly to patients in the local dialysis centers. It was an interesting scene when the twins showed up with a brown grocery bag full of cash for immediate patient needs, like medications, food, and transportation of patients to dialysis treatments. The first formative tournament was a shop versus shop competition between Rich and Phil's company, Salick Surfboards and their good friends at the Ocean Avenue Shop. It raised $125.00.

The man they met next was influential in the growth of the surf festival. Dr. Craig Tisher was the new Chief of Nephrology at the University of Florida and was reviewing files of his departments' patients. He came across numerous news articles about an unusual transplant recipient doing things never heard of by a transplant recipient and actively raising money for patients, traveling around the country talking about recovery, wellness after transplantation, and organ donation. Dr. Tisher at the time was also the Region II Vice President of the National Kidney Foundation. He suggested a competitive surfing tournament on a national level and queried Rich on this possibility. This was the beginning of the National Kidney Foundation Pro-Am Surfing Program.

Unfortunately, at this time Rich encountered another severe test. Due to a recurrence of IGA Nephropathy, a type of Glomerulonephritis, he was going to lose his transplanted kidney which had been a perfect match for 12 years and allowed him to do so many wonderful things.

The second surgery was put off until a donor was found. Rich's older brother, Channing, wanted to be the donor. Years earlier, Channing was not a strong match, but over time there had been many advances with immunosuppressive medication and he was now soundly considered. Unfortunately, in 1999 after having the second transplant for twelve years, the IGA Nephropathy reappeared and Rich needed a third Transplant from his younger brother Wilson.

Rich continued to work for Transplant and Dialysis patients and was honored as the National Chairman of the National Kidney Foundations Patient and Family Council 2000. At the 2000 US Transplant Games, Rich was awarded the coveted "Making Lives Better Award" voted by his transplant and professional peers. At the 2000 NKF Professional Staff Association meeting at Mt. Hood Oregon, Rich was presented the "Charles T. Weber Award" for Humanitarian Efforts," one of only two awards given by the National Professional Staff Association. His real "dream" came true as he was a 2000 inductee into the "Surfing Hall of Fame" as an "East Coast Legend". The Surfing Tournament that Richard and Phil Salick hoped would help people has now become one of the greatest financial and motivational tools of the National Kidney Foundation of Florida.

The first official NKF of Florida Pro-Am event, with the help and encouragement of Dr. Tisher and Spero Moutsatsos, raised $67,000. Media attention for the festival grew along with sponsorships and, to date, this event has raised over five million dollars for patient programs provided by the NKF of Florida. Thousands of people attend the five-day event which features name entertainment, surfing competition, food and music, and a banquet and silent auction. Hundreds of prizes are given away including trips and surfboards from many manufacturers.

The NKF of Florida Surf Festival is the largest charity surfing competition in the world. Held over Labor Day weekend, the festival has been attended by several hundred thousand people throughout its 29 year history. All proceeds go to the NKF of Florida to support programs in patient services, research, public and professional education, and organ donation. In addition to raising funds, the festival strives to increase awareness of kidney disease with an emphasis on prevention and support for organ donation and transplantation.

In July 2012, we lost our beloved friend and patient advocate, Rich Salick. Because of our dedicated volunteers, we are able to continue to hold the event in Rich's legacy and raise funds for kidney patients and raise awareness of kidney disease, which was exactly what Rich strived to do.
